Adopted radio personality talks Monday's forum assembly

The man who knows more about Americans than Americans do—Alistair Cooke—will speak at the Brigham Young University Forum assembly on Monday.

The public is invited to hear the author commentator at 8 p.m. in the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse at BYU.

ALTHOUGH best known for his work conducting "Omni" on television, Mr. Cooke is even more famous abroad his unique interpretations of Americans to the British. He is the chief American correspondent for the Manchester Guardian and since 1938 has broadcast regularly over the U. S. affairs.

A transplanted Englishman who is now an American man, he explains, "If you are a goldfish or if you swim in them long enough, it is impossible to say what are characteristics of a goldfish. But if somebody slaps a kerel into a goldfish bowl, you can see at once all sorts things goldfish have, and the other things they lack."

IN EXAMINING AMERICANS and writing about them, as has traveled a lot farther than most native Americans. In his observations he describes and explains, with unadorned good humor, the American scene, its manners and its, its paradoxes and peculiarities, its history, landscape heroes. For these vignettes he won radio's highest prize, Peabody Award.

Mr. Cooke was born in Manchester, England, and first came to America in 1932 for graduate study at Harvard Yale, where he specialized in the American language. As lived in the United States almost continuously since 1932, and in 1941 became an American citizen. He is the author of "One Man's America," "A Generation on Trial"

AMS to honor Romney today

George Romney, president of American Motors and prominent Church official, will be honored Friday at AMS Men's Night for his outstanding contributions to his church and community.

Men's Night was initiated four years ago with the intent and purpose of honoring a man who was felt to be exemplary and representative of LDS manhood.

IN 1959, the award went to Vernon Law, pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates; in 1959 to Marion D. Hanks, formerly one of the presidents of the Seventies and newly appointed British mission president, and in 1958 to Gene Fullmer, middleweight boxing champion.

Also awarded at Men's Night will be the supremacy trophy to the most outstanding men's social unit and the scholarship trophy. Clark Thorntonsen, AMS president, will present the awards, and Elder Romney will be the main speaker.

A STAG DANCE starting at 9:30 p.m. is planned to round out the evening. Free transportation will be provided for the girls, whose admission is also free, though fellows must pay 50 cents.

Girls may obtain rides to the dance by waiting at Cannon Center, Amanda Knight, Knight, and the parking lot by the east doorway of Heritage Hall, or by Carroll and Gates Halls.

IN HIS AREA of special authority are: theory of reaction rates, theory of liquids, plastics and metals and the application of quantum mechanics to chemical theory.

Dr. Eyring has received numerous achievement awards and honorary degrees including the Ninth Award of the AAAS in 1932, the James E. Talmage Scientific Achievement Award of Brigham Young University and the Alumni Achievement Award from the University of Arizona in 1947.

Dr. Eyring is a member of the General Sunday School Board. He is married to Mildred Bennion and they have three sons.

FOLLOWING Dr. Eyring's speech, a panel including Dr. Mark Cannon and Dr. Smith Broadbent of the graduate faculty and Betty Harrison and Marvin Kuehar, graduate students, will be held.

Current Affairs class questions Sen. Bennett

by Linda Loughton
University Staff Writer

Now that Congress is out of session, Utah's senior Senator, Wallace F. Bennett is touring his native state. After visiting 22 Utah counties the senator spent an hour at BYU answering the questions fired by Dr. Mark Cannon's current affairs students yesterday.

HE SPENT THE afternoon shaking hands with steel workers at Geneva and answering reporters' questions. Most Utahns know Senator Bennett as a former businessman and conservative voice in the Republican Party, which is in the minority in both the Senate and House.

But the Senator is also a man that meets hundreds of people in an hour and enjoys teaching a Gospel Doctrine class each Sunday in his Chevy Chase Ward in Maryland. He likes to take long walks and is known to walk four miles to his Washington office in the new Senate Office Building. He received his bachelor's degree in English and loves to read. The hardest task the Senator remembers was asking Heber J. Grant, President of the Church, for his daughter's hand in marriage. She is now Mrs. Francis Grant Bennett.

A MEMBER OF the Senate for eleven years (he outranks both New York Senators in seniority), he likes his job. He laughs when he tells his visitors that Washington is considered a "hardship weather post."

Answering a student question about what Congress has accomplished this year he said, "Congress closed the current session on Oct. 1, which is the longest we have been kept in session since the Korean War. We killed a lot of time." He defined legislation as a process of adjustment and compromise, "trying to find a common denominator."

Three major issues were held over for the next session—federal aid to education, medical care for the aged and tax revision. He stated that President Kennedy "didn't" allow these bills to come to a vote this session to give him more time to get the party in line with pressure to get those bills passed.

WHEN ASKED ABOUT the coming election, he gave "organization" as his biggest problem. "I'm thoroughly convinced that the majority of the people in Utah are essentially conservative," he said. The big issue for the coming election is basic political philosophy—the conservative vs. the liberal.

In deploring the national debt he said that we spend "a million dollars each hour more than we take in." In 30 years the budget has been balanced only six times. The Senator indicated that as a result of our present deficit we should expect inflation or tax boosts. "We have lost 55 per cent of the purchasing value of a dollar and the consumer's price index will continue to rise."

WHEN ASKED how to fight Communism, the Senator answered, "Not by watching a TV show or going to a lecture and getting warmed up and patriotic and then not doing anything about it." He said there is "no need to look around and find Communists—the FBI knows who they

Legislature creates laws

I was interested to read a letter from Cleo Ward appearing in the Nov. 7 issue of this paper. Many of his points were true. All of his points warrant consideration.

IT WOULD seem that students do have a responsibility to correct some of the problems presented by him in his letter. Reference was made to the crowding in the lunch lines at Cannon Center, crowding into football ticket lines, and the saving of seats in assemblies.

I would like to correct one statement made by him in reference to another article. It was stated that "The Executive Council said they could make rulings against seat saving and similar headaches." This is not true. Under the official procedures of the Associated Students (Constitution), rules must be made solely by the legislative branch, in this case being the Senate. Nevertheless, the Executive Council does have the responsibility of enforcing laws enacted by the Senate.

IF THERE ARE students who feel "similar headaches" exist in addition to those stated by Mr. Ward, there would seem to be only one way to correct them. The Senate has the power to enact laws governing the students of this university. If laws are needed to correct headaches which exist, they then ought to be enacted.

I would appeal to fellow students to contact their representatives in the Senate (names, addresses and phone numbers in student directory—page 10) and see that legislation is presented. This would seem the most logical way to provide the Executive Council with a means of correcting existing problems.

Eating in Library

Dear Editor,

Here I am in the library, crouched silently away in a graduate study corner trying to study. Then, suddenly, and without warning, my nostrils are violently assailed with the odors of some foreign element—could it be some form of Russian nerve gas?

No, upon closer sniffing it seems to smack lightly of a cross between a rotten egg and maple-fried popcorn balls. What could it be? Stale? I rise from my chair, determined and set upon my course to discover the source of this destroyer of calm study and Norelity.

BUT, BEFORE I AM able to clear the seat, my ears are besieged with the grinding, crushing sounds of unfettered mastication. Oh, heavenly-scented in my plight: Some cruel madman holds the fate of my sanity in his paws! Then, mercifully, the wild chewing ceases and I am relieved—but only for one blessed moment.

The next sound I hear is the muffled rattling of waxed paper—and the agony begins again! The barbarian seems to delight in the variation of tonal quality in his work—first a rather low and methodical chomping rising rapidly to a climax of rock-crushing destruction.

WHAT? It comes forth from the briefcase-secrected waxed paper has suffered a brutal annihilation—together with my own treasured powers of en-centration. Grasping mentally for salvation from this monster my feverish brain conceals a full dozen slow and painful modes of murder whereby I may do away with his malevolent designs.

When, at last, I determine to crush him into nothingness with a thousand well-fung encyclopedia (which lie close at hand) he again without warning—arises, takes his horrid briefcase, and departs without a word for a time to see if the story we told is correct.

(In protest)

Change system

When we go to our bishop and ask for a temple recommend or to be interviewed for any reason, the bishop asks us some pertinent questions and we give out answers.

The bishop doesn't, after the interview, hire a staff of detectives to have someone follow us around for a time to see if the story we told is correct.

HE TAKES our word, and gives us our recommend or position on the basis of what we told him. This is the attitude that I would like to see develop at the library.

Whether than go through the humiliation of being searched like a common criminal, I would like to be asked as I approach the door if I have any library books, and if I have, may they be checked to see that no mistakes have been made in the checking-out process. And if I have no library books I would like to be allowed to pass through the doors like a gentleman.

BEING ASKED as I leave from whatever daydream I might be in and if I should happen to be absent-mindedly walking out with a book that had not been properly checked out, I would realize it.

Of course, this merely asking would not stop those who were deliberately stealing books, but I wonder if there is anyone naive enough to believe that looking through briefcases is going to stop them either.

THE WEATHER is cold now, and most people are wearing heavy coats which provide excellent hiding places for books. I suppose it is true that since it is a policy of the library to check the articles of students, we who wish to use the library facilities must abide by the rules; but is there any reason why the library can't change its policies to adopt a much more civilized method to accomplish the same thing that is being accomplished by searching?

I FEEL THAT the honor system is one of the most important institutions of this University, and I would like to be given the privilege to live under it.

Incorrect reporting

In the Nov. 7 issue of the Daily Universe, I read a statement in an article by Art Peterson that, in my opinion, was not correct reporting.

The last sentence in Peterson's report of the Fieldhouse Frolics stated, "The finals brought the entire cast on stage, as they sang about the different sections of the world that were represented at the Y."

IT IS MY OPINION that the finale of the Fieldhouse Frolics did not represent the different sections of the "world" that is represented at the Y. The finale represented only those students from the United States.

I don't know if this restriction was intentional; I certainly hope that it was not.

THE LDS CHURCH is a world-wide organization, and BYU is a part of that organization. I was disappointed in the finale of the Fieldhouse Frolics because of its limited nature, and I feel that somewhere along the line someone lost sight of the true position of our University.

I only wish that Mr. Peterson's statement was true, and that the different sections of the world had been represented.

Embarrassing moments

In reference to Mr. Young's complaint about the laced hosiery brigade, we thought that might contrast his overactive libido.

Vulcanized hip-boots and long black gloves would cover the appendages. These would be enhanced by a turtle-neck, ankle-length, form-fitting frock, fastened from the top of the canvas. This enchanting fashion-piece can be topped off by a gas mask which covers the facial flesh, yet allows sight, breath and muffled vocal tones.

Perhaps this would alleviate Mr. Young's embarrassing (Quote) moments.

Yours truly,

Ticket distribution

I would like to call to the attention of the students and administration, a problem which exists on the BYU campus and which, I feel, should be corrected. It concerns the distribution of tickets for athletic events; namely football games.

THE PRESENT system for distribution allows practically anyone to pick up their tickets at an early date; anyone, that is, except the students. The public, faculty, and certain "select" groups (which I learned about through personal investigation) may obtain their tickets several days in advance, while the students cannot get theirs until the day before or the day of the game.

THIS MAKES it necessary for a large number of the student body to sit in the bleachers on the west side, while the seating sections are partially filled with people who are not students.

I feel that these students in the bleachers are being cheated out of what is rightfully theirs. In the majority of the larger universities, the students may obtain their tickets as much as ten days in advance. The public cannot purchase tickets until the students have had first choice.

THIS IS THE way tickets are handled at UCLA, the University of California, and the University of Southern California. This method is fair to all concerned. It allows more students to sit together, and thus pro-more better school spirit.

I don't expect to get results overnight, but I do feel that an open discussion could be held or a poll of the students be taken to determine the opinion of the student body. Then, changes should be made accordingly.

Mike Kennedy

Consistent, inconsistent

In several incidences in the past Brigham Young University has failed to participate in athletic events that would have involved Sunday play.

The student body of this University is proud of the sacrifices that our athletes have made in depriving themselves, their teams and their school of possible income and publicity.

THEY HAVE brought credit to themselves and the school by keeping the standards of the school and of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

On Dec. 31 of this year BYU has been invited to attend the General Electric College Bowl in New York City. This event will be viewed by millions on television sets across the country. It will not only be a source of great publicity to BYU but brings with it chances of winning scholarships.

APPARENTLY the invitation has been accepted. But has the administration overlooked the fact that Dec.

31, 1966, falls on Sunday therefore Sunday competition will be involved? Or there is a difference between academic and athletic competition on Sunday.

IT SEEMS TO ME that academic competition on day which will bring pay and scholarships to this is just as much as baseball Sabbath Day as would baseball game or other event.

IF BYU is to continue to vacate nonactivity in on Sunday (which I believe proper and correct to follow), should not the general Electric invitation likewise been declined?

Cat Band to perform for Saturday game

The newly uniformed BYU Cat Band appears in Cougar Stadium for the last time a season in a halftime show of Utah high school bands Saturday's BYU-Colorado football game, according to Richard Ballou, band director.

FEATURING British grenadier style uniforms with high-collared coats and 10-inch blue bearskin shakos (hats), the BYU band joins in an annual performance during the halftime of Saturday's game, he said.

A white shield inscribed with the letters "BYU" is prominent in the band's uniforms, with the letters "BYU" in blue background of the shield. A shoulder patch with a cougar head is also featured.

K.'s to choose new Duchess

Half of the hopefuls in the intercollegiate Knights' Duchess contest will be eliminated after the first phase of judging Saturday, said Ron Hales, I.K. Duchess chairman.

Beauty, talent, personality and poise are the qualities the judges will search for, said Hales. In judging Saturday the emphasis will be on beauty, this judging will take place at 9 a.m. in 172 Knight Bldg.

Girls participating must sign up for a list available at the bulletin board, basement Student Service Center. Dress the contest is street wear, heels and shoes or suit shoes, explained Mr. Hales. Judges will consider overall poise, modeling ability and answers contestants give to a variety of specific questions.

DISPHASIS WILL be on trial in the second contest to be held the afternoon of Nov. 18 in the Provo Ninth Ward chapter N. 6th East. Mr. Hales led only one-fourth of the final candidates will survive the judging period.

The remaining Duchess candidates will be judged with an emphasis on personality and poise Nov. 20 in 172 Knight Bldg.

THE GIRL who emerges victorious will reign over the year's activities and will participate in regional and possibly national I.K. Duchess competition, Hales said.

Judges for the contest are: Mrs. Hilton, present Duchess; David Dredge, national I.K. royalty; Ron Hales, I.K. Duchess chairman; Jim Beatse, Gold Y Junior Vice-Duke; and Richard Hinton.

fitted on each shoulder of the uniform, said Mr. Ballou.

HE EMPHASIZED that they are designed by the BYU band staff and are unique for a college band, particularly the high hats for each band member. He said they are made of high quality 100 per cent virgin wool.

IN SATURDAY'S show the BYU precision drill band and over 20 high school bands—1500 bandmen—will join in a two part program including a salute to J. C. Christensen, veteran band director from Payson High School, and a salute to the armed forces, explained Mr. Ballou.

COUGAR BAND—Members of the BYU Cougar Marching Band sparkle as they show their new uniforms for the first time in last week's Homecoming parade.

Cal players dominate freshmen

In this year's freshman team is strong indication of the future, then California football players will probably dominate the BYU and scene for a few years to come.

A GRAND total of 24 players from the Sunshine State are listed with this year's frosh who will take on the University of Utah Nov. 17 at Provo for the mythical Beehive State championship.

BYU has lost its last two games to the Air Force Academy and the Utes, while the Redskins have drubbed the Utah State Aggies in addition to knocking over BYU.

THE TWO Cougar losses are the first in eight games, and the California-monopolized Kittens will be out to make sure the Ute frosh don't take two in a row.

San Diego and North Hollywood lead the coast cities with four donations each to BYU frosh football. They include Jim McCorquodale, Mike Hill, Mike Jacobsen and Dave Morris from San Diego and Don McCall, Larry Stonebraker, Ken Ranier and Barry Corenby from North Hollywood.

GARY CASS and Norm Sands both hail from Newhall.

Other Californians include:

Dean Thornock, San Lucas; Paul Richards, Fresno; Dennis Carlston, Whittier; Bruce Holley, Van Nuys; John Brown, Los Angeles; Doug Wardell, Lemon Grove; Kent Nance, Madera; Don Haggen, Woodland Hills.

DICK SCHICKEDANZ, Berkeley; Jerry Spatz, Anaheim; Dennis Smith, Redondo Beach; Joe Ajax, Sonoma; Darrell Edwards, Marysville; and Dean Stringham, Riverside, are included.

Back home in Utah, Provo and Lehi top the list of six Utah players. Rex Wright and Alec Andrus are from Provo while a Lehi duo include Brent Allred and Cliff Norman.

DOUG MAYNE is a Bountiful center and Bill Marriott is a guard from Ogden.

The next states represented on the Kitten frosh squad are Idaho and Oregon with three players each.

FROM THE Potato State are D. I. Simpson, Idaho Falls; David Ball, Lewisville; and Tony Tripple, Glenna, Perry.

The Oregon trio include: Jun 1983, Medford; Dalea Uwaga, Ontario; and Guy Hale, Beaver-ton.

HAWAII, South Carolina, Texas and Washington each have a pair of frosh players at BYU.

Honolulu players include: Jensen Kaa and John Kawaia; Harold Stone and Pete Smith are from Abbeville, S. C.

TWO TEXANS are Jack Linder, Kenedy; and Danny Mahana, Vidor, and from the state of Washington are Ron West, Woodland, and Bruce Smith, Seattle.

Rounding out the players and states are Terry Yockey, Sioux City, Iowa; Don Russell, Sheridan, Wyo.; and Phil Brady, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Tickets for Saturday's BYU-Colorado State football game will be distributed at booths at the top of the stadium Friday 4 to 5 p.m., said Floyd H. Taylor, ticket manager.

Fellow fans may get tickets for their dates on showing two activity cards.

Kittens get set for Utah frosh

by Terry Johnson
Universe Sports Writer

The BYU Kittens are making preparations for an Indian invasion come Nov. 18, with the Indians being none other than the Papooses from the University of Utah.

THE LAST MEETING between these two teams ended with the Papooses holding the long end of an 18-14 score. The Kittens will be out to reverse the outcome with the neighbors from the North next Friday at Cougar Stadium at 2:30 p.m.

In their last game at Colorado Springs, the Gatos dropped a 20-6 encounter to the high-flying cadets from the Air Force Academy in a hard-played game.

PHIL BRADY, who substituted for Kent Nance while tail-back Nance was injured, ran 73 yards the first time the Kittens got their hands on the ball to give the Gatos the initial score of the ball game.

From then on, it was all the baby Hawks, who ran through an injury ridden Cougar team in the second half to account for their 20 points.

CHECKING the injury list, Dennis Smith who hasn't played since the Utah State contest, might see limited action in the Utah encounter, if his knee responds to treatment. Nance, still hobbling on a sprained ankle, should be ready to play against the Utes.

Improved CSU Rams invade for Cat duel

"A reasonably sound and improved" Colorado State Rams will provide the opposition for the BYU Saturday game. The Cougars play their final game of the season.

According to Coach Turley, the Rams will be in shape for the Cougars who will be looking for their second conference win.

The only BYU victory was against Montana while the last inference loss for the Fort Collins crew was to the Taps who came through in the final period to win 21-19.

The one really bright spot for the Rams this season is their brilliant defense against Wyoming, holding the Tokes to 7-6 until the final quarter when a powerhouse from Laramie easily wore out the Rams bench and tallied two quick ones for a 18-7 victory.

Starting quarterback will probably be Leroy Gutierrez. He has been starting for the Rams in their past few games, although varsity holder from last season Bill Berringer is pushing for the starting nod.

Berringer has attempted over 10 passes this season and has completed 30 of them. Gutierrez runs more of the ground plays, but can pass, though not as strongly as Berringer.

Starting back on the left side, Dennis Wohlhueter with assistance from Ron Kaanehe. Wohlhueter is currently third in the Rams rushing statistics, with Kaanehe leading the punt return attack.

At right half, possibly the strongest position on the Rams lineup, Ken Hines or Rich Brown will get the nod. Hines has been leading the rushing attack for the Rams with Brown following him.

Ish Ranshaw should start for the Aggies at fullback spot. This year, a junior engineering major from Alabama, has been out-hustled a few times by teammate Don Pomeroy, a transfer from Northwest, Miss., Junior College. Ranshaw, however, has appeared to be stronger on defense, one thing which has kept the Aggies in the game so many times this year.

Hiram DeFries, a converted guard, will get the starting nod at center, one position where the Rams sorely need depth. DeFries will be backed up by John Cook, also a converted guard who appeared in last year's edition of the Collegegates at center.

Left guard Nick Kohls will team with Purdum Thomas to handle the guard spots in the starting lineup, but since this part of the line has not been holding up well of late the Rams will most certainly have to go to their bench.

Thomas will be backed up by Ray Burch and Arnold Epps, while Kohls will have Rich St. Clair and Mark Kulmus to spell him off.

Tackles Doug York and Curtis Threault will start against the Cougars, and both seem to have their job down pat. This is possibly the strongest part of the Aggie line, even though there is only one senior amongst this group.

Ted Olson will start at right end, with Bob Hays at the left. Hays is currently top receiver for Berringer passes and can be counted on to perform well in this duel. Olson, a junior college transfer from Cameron, Okla., has been playing more as a defensive end than a pass receiver, but with a team that has had to be on defense as much as this year's Aggies, he is a man well worth his starting spot on the squad.

CSU TACKLE — Doug York will team with Curtis Threault to start on the line at tackle positions in an effort to help the visiting Rams to their first win of the current season.

"Back Street"

Tasteful film version of Hurst novel in Provo

"A touchy subject filmed in extremely good taste," is the comment of many spectators of Fannie Hurst's "Back Street," now being shown in downtown Provo.

THE MOVIE CONCERNS the love existing between a dress designer and a wealthy department store owner, whose "style" is cramped by marriage and two children.

SUSAN HAYWARD, who won an Academy Award for her performance in "Til Ezy Tomorrow," plays the successful "Rae" Smith, partner to Dallas, world-famous designer of couturier collections. Her par amour, Paul Saxon, is played by John Gavin.

Outstanding features of this movie are excellent sights of New York, Rome and Paris; skillful photography; some of the most glamorous clothes seen this side of Mrs. John F. Kennedy; Miss Hayward's competent acting performance and the poignant plot.

"The baffling sex" ...

Advertisers analyze American women

NEW YORK, (UPI)—Advertising knows a lot about women, but still has a lot to learn, says an advertising executive.

"American women baffle American businessmen," says William J. Colihan, a vice president of Young and Rubicam, Inc. We in the advertising business hold you (the women) to be one of our biggest continuing problems. We strive and struggle to really read you. We ponder and debate, we survey and research . . . and consult consultants and test markets. But we succeed only in inching along the way to insight."

Yet businessmen must keep trying to understand women because it is the woman who spends most of the dollars spent in America, Colihan continued. Madison Avenue knows that at most "nobody in the consumer field can be successful today without, like some cosmic Romeo, wooing and winning women," so said Colihan, the research must go on.

COLIHAN'S remarks concerning the baffling sex were made to wives of members of the National Wholesale Drug Association meeting in Miami.

Even though Colihan called women as "enigmatic as the Sphinx," he said "patient" research had brought to light these "secrets" about less girls.

"Women love to go out to dinner . . . but did you know that only one-third ever order something they don't have at home.

"WOMEN are introspective and worried even when there's not much cause. Over half feel there's something wrong with them that even they themselves don't know what it is.

"A quarter of women think elevators are liable to fall with them—then almost never think of that.

"Women sometimes are remarkably accurate. Forty-nine per cent of women think they are overweight. And actually, according to insurance companies, about 49 per cent are overweight. . . .

"WOMEN—AND THIS hurts—are not as pioneering as businessmen would like. Less than a quarter want to try new products. The rest wait till some one else tries it. . . .

"Women—and this will come as a surprise to men—are concerned about being late. Eighty five per cent say, 'Whenever I have an appointment I try to get there a lot earlier rather than be a little late.' They try, but do they succeed?

"Women have funny guilt feelings. For instance, they worry about things being too easy, like a cake mix that comes all in a package. Makes them feel better to crack and add their own egg. . . .

"WOMEN are emotionally

Get set, coeds, for the big race; Preference Ball time draws near

BYU coeds set Daisy Mae and all her Sadie Hawkins' Day pole green with envy with one of the most impressive events of the school year, the Preference Ball, held this year on December 8.

For years, preference has been the colorful highlight of Women's Week on campus, which this year promises to be rather exciting with a Near-Eastern theme. During this time, the women switch to the pursuers instead of the pursued and collectively choose the man they would most like to date.

A CAMPUS-WIDE election

is held for the most preferred men of the year who are announced at the assembly. In addition to this female outlet of choice, each girl picks her own preferred man as her escort to the ball.

The primary voting for the most preferred men on campus will be held on Monday, November 14, in the Smith Family Living Center, the Science Center, and the Library, 3rd level lobby from 9 a.m. till 4 p.m. on both days.

AT THIS TIME, the girls will vote for the three men on campus they would most like date. The twenty-five men receiving the most votes will main as final candidates the most preferred men. Saturday, November 18, vote from the top twenty-five the eleven most preferred will take place.

The preferring of dates the dance will also take place simultaneously in the ball of the Eyring Science Center.

The time each girl prefer date will be determine the last numbers of her a tiny card.

Thanksgiving
menus feature
spicy desserts

by Dorothy Hicks

When people start planning Thanksgiving dinner menus, one item that is almost always included is a spicy pumpkin pie for dessert.

And if you don't have a lot of time to bake pies, here's one that can be made in two shorter periods of time because the crust can be made and baked ahead of time and the filling put in on Thanksgiving morning after you get your turkey into the oven.

PUMPKIN CHEFON PIE:

- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 cups milk
- 1½ cups cooked or canned pumpkin

Combine cornstarch, brown sugar, spices and salt, and add enough of the milk to make a paste. Sauté remaining milk and blend into the paste mixture. Stir constantly until thick and cook 10 minutes. Add egg yolks and stir for one more minute. Add pumpkin and remove from heat. Pour into baked, cooled pie crusts, and cover with whipped cream or meringue. If meringue is used, brown slightly under broiler. If whipped cream is used, all you need do is pop the pie into your refrigerator until serving time. This recipe will make two 9-inch pies.

Or you might be interested in something a little different in the dessert line. If you are, this recipe should be just your dish:

EASY HOLIDAY DESSERT

- 1 cup cut-up dates
- 1 cup hot water
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 egg
- 1 cup sugar
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Combine dates, hot water, butter and soda. Let cool. Beat egg into first mixture. Add sugar, flour, salt and nuts. Bake in greased 9-inch square pan at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes (or until a toothpick inserted into the middle comes out clean). Serve while still warm. Top with any favorite pudding sauce or with whipped cream garnished with a marshmallow cherry.

are and what they are doing and this is not our responsibility. He concluded that the best way to fight Communism is by learning the pattern of American government and the principles which will keep the country free.

In an interview the Senator remarked on student government and BYU. "Student government is essential . . . as the voice through which the students can express their interest in their own academic problems." He lauded BYU as "the most fortunate school in Utah and one of the most fortunate in the West with the expansion of its physical plant. Its big challenge now is to continue to expand both the number and rank of its faculty as well as the make-up of its student body."

PTA views movies

Editor's note: The Provo PTA, disappointed with the quality of movies shown by the local theatres in the past, has established a movie critic system with the hope of improving this situation. The Daily Universe, as a public service, is co-operating in this effort to provide better movie fare for the community. The Universe does not intend to dictate what movies students should or should not see; but rather to indicate the quality of movies reviewed by the PTA group.

The following movie suggestions are made by the Provo PTA:

Greyfriar's Bobby . . . recommended for the entire family.

Back Street . . . recommended as very good entertainment for adults.

Breakfast at Tiffany's . . . recommended for adults and teenagers.

Seniors make 'no response' to photo call

Only a third of the seniors have shown up to have pictures taken for the yearbook, said Jerry Rogers, assistant manager of the BYU Photo Studio.

They have made "no response" as compared to the other classes and past seniors, he reports.

FRESHMEN and Juniors, an "excellent response," according to Rogers, with a drop in sophomore participation.

"The photos are made at studio in Eyring Science Center at no cost to the students," Rogers explained.

"Senior pictures will be taken through Nov. 15 when seniors complete their studio teaching on the block plan to come in," he said.

"It's difficult to see why seniors doesn't have his pictures taken," Rogers commented.

"The 1961-62 Banyan is a book of remembrances of college days—a sort of fling," he said.

Published Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and Christmas periods by the Associated Students of Brigham Young University, 1000 Main Building, Provo, Utah. Entered Sept. 1961, under art of March 3, 1. Subscription price of $4.50 per year. Printed by the Brigham Young University Press.
